We are thrilled to announce the 10th annual North Carolina Pacific Arts Festival, themed "Celebrating Island Princesses," scheduled for June 28th & 29th, 2024, at the American Legion on 146 Broadhurst Rd, Jacksonville, North Carolina 29546.

This year's festival will showcase cultural dances, music, educational exhibits, arts, crafts, and cuisine. The focus will be on honoring the strength and individuality of female leaders and guardians from the Pacific Islands. These female leaders have significantly influenced cultural practices and progress in the Pacific Islands. Our goal is to inspire others to explore Pacific Island culture and become leaders in their own communities.

The event will also provide a platform for vendors and performers representing various islands to present their traditional cultural practices and community art forms.

Last year, the NCPAF granted scholarships to three high school seniors to support their college endeavors. These recipients were active community members, and we hope they will continue to lead in the future. This year, we aim to provide three scholarships to local high school students.

The festival attracted visitors and participants from all over North Carolina, the USA, and the world last year. NCPAF was involved in cultural events at schools and libraries, as well as hosting cultural workshops. North Carolina Pacific Arts Festival is a non-profit 501(3)C organization, and we appreciate the support from individuals and businesses like yours. Please consider becoming a donor for the 2024 North Carolina Pacific Arts Festival.
